

THE LOBO MULCH

PACKING IN THE FUN!

August 3, 2019

Sponsored by Endless Hit Point Yetis. This battle's gonna take a while!

Issue VI

Soo, when we last left the party, (not sure if they qualify as heroes, at least not yet) they were in the middle of combat with two yetis. Unfortunately, the yetis had a special weapon, the chilling gaze. So, when they say Chill, they mean it literally. The cleric found herself frozen, several times and paralyzed. She was unable to heal, even herself. She found herself longing for Jase's warm embrace. Meanwhile Tansey was pounding those arrows into the second yeti. The first one chilled Keetha to the bone and she was paralyzed for a short time. Kain had to drag her to safety (Not been married yet and she's already brought out the ball and chain!) he also managed to get B to safety while the frost giants continued pounding on the yeti. Since B was paralyzed, she couldn't do the safety dance but since she was also unconscious and dying, Kain had to feed her a potion. Of course, her first words were "Watch those hands Bub!" Fortunately, Keetha was too busy being paralyzed herself to notice Kain's wondering hands on another woman.

Unfortunately, the yetis were smarter than they look (which really isn't saying much as they look pretty stupid!) they zapped her again with his chilling gaze. The cold damage rendered her unconscious and paralyzed again. Noone had any more potions. I wasn't looking good for the cleric.

However, Keetha had recovered and was slamming into them as best she could. She and Kain were doing the best they can, along with ol' Bob Dawg. Fortunately, although they tried to chill Bob Dawg, he passed the ol' con check (Or is that Checkov 'keptin, course laid in') anyway Bob continued hammering away, singing "I've been working on the rail road, all the live long day".

Meanwhile Tansey remembered the cleric lessons he had giving her and cast a healing spell on B who was unparalyzed but still dying. B woke up groggily and for a second thought Kain was Jase and then realized she was mistaken, (Phew that was a close one!) It was shortly after that the frost giants finished off Yeti#2. The Kain got the finishing blow on Yeti #1. So, the party skins the leopards and Yeti's and take a long rest. (Geeze think they were hurt or something)

After the long rest they found the diamond and took it back to the King. They were given safe passage up the mountain. They reach Lion's gate pass and see a skeleton, possibly human, possibly elf. They also find the word "Jig" carved into the nearby wall/mountainside, along with the words "Kilroy was here". It looks like there was more but the writer wasn't able to carve it out before they died.

So, unable to figure out what the words meant, they continued on for two more days and finally reached Granamyr's dome. A huge edifice. There was a sign over the door that said "Don't Trifle with dragons for thou are crunchy and go good with tomato sauce". The party cautiously knocked at the door. Well actually Kain knocked at the door assuring that he would be the first eaten if indeed the dragon decided to do so. After a quick parley thru the door and Kain identifying them as the emissaries of Queen Marlana. They were let in. They behold a silver haired woman in a silver dress and silver eyes. Kain bravely asked if she was Granamyre. She said yes and bid them enter. As soon as everyone was I she turned to tansey and told her Do not steal anything from her or else! Tansey, sufficiently intimidated agreed. Granamyr also told her not to steal from good people and especially not from people in Kain's folk's place. She did mention that fiddle needs to return the necklace that tansey stole. He agreed having confessed he did not know it was stolen.

So, the dragon lady tried to get kain to come to her bed. He refused and Keetha made it clear she was staking a claim. (boy talk about living dangerously! Refusing a dragon? Hope he's worth it honey!)

So, onto business. She offered them dinner as opposed to them being dinner (Well more like a light snack). Tansey peppered her with questions about the travel trees and the jewel riders. Granamyr regaled them with tales of the jewel riders and the day princess gwenevere entered the friendship circle only to not be matched with any of the animals. Fortunately, her best friend Tamera a jewel rider herself, knew the answer was that the right animal wasn't there. She found the unicorn, sunstar whom they had encountered earlier and brought her before gwenevere. The match was instantaneous. Thus began the legend. She did mention the evil Princess Kale. The queen's sister. She wielded the darkstone and tried to conquer Avalon only to be stopped by the jewel riders. Tansey asked if Kale could be responsible for this. Garanamyr said maybe. It was certainly possible.

Granamyr did tell them that they need to find the sunstone and the descendant of gwenevere. Who can operate it? She also mentioned that avalon was sealed away, (Darn those pesky seals! Send them back to the zoo!) but by what she could not say. Perhaps it was still possible to find avalon. She also mentioned that she and Bahamut were ...very close. When tansey asked of Bahamut was her boyfriend, granamyr got a little coy saying she didn't want to brag but..well she didn't quite finish the sentence but that seemed to indicate yes.

After a meal, well more of feast. The servants took away everything the adventurers headed off to bed after granamyr promising she would put them in touch with someone who could find the sunstone. And so, we left the party with much yet to do.

So, will Keetha ever get tired to the soldier? Has Tansey learned her lesson about stealing from good people? Will be and Jase ever get together? What does granamyr have in store for the party? What isn't she telling them? And why are all the women throwing themselves at Kain? Will fiddle return the necklace?

Find out next week, same dungeon time, same dragon channel